7. Paragraph 8 applies in the case of a pensioner who reaches pensionable age on or after 6 April 2016 and is not entitled to any additional pension.

8. Where the Treasury make a section 59 order increasing official pensions and the amount by reference to which the increase in an official pension under that order is to be calculated would, but for this direction, be reduced under section 59(5) of the Pensions Act by an amount equal to the rate of a guaranteed minimum pension, the amount of that reduction shall be equal to the amount by which the pensioner's guaranteed minimum pension has been increased by virtue of a section 109 order in the tax year in which the section 59 order comes into force, and in any such case the increase shall, in respect of any period after the order comes into force, be calculated in accordance with this direction notwithstanding section 59(5).

9. In a case to which paragraph 2(b) or 8 applies, the rate of an official pension shall be calculated as if this direction had been in force at all times from 6 April 2016.

10. This direction comes into force on 6 April 2021.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Direction)

Official pensions – which are occupational pensions payable to or in respect of public servants – are increased under the Pensions (Increase) Act 1971, so that they maintain their value as against price rises. Where the Secretary of State makes a direction by virtue of section 151 of the Social Security Administration Act 1992 to the effect that certain social security benefits are to be increased by reference to the increase in prices over a specified period, section 59 of the Social Security Pensions Act 1975 requires the Treasury to make a parallel order increasing official pensions.

Public service pension schemes were contracted out and so must pay a guaranteed minimum pension (GMP) in respect of pensionable service in the tax years from 1978-79 to 1996-97 inclusive.

For those reaching pensionable age on or before 5 April 2016, the state retirement pension consists of two elements, namely a basic pension and an earnings related pension (now known as additional pension). Double indexation of a GMP would occur if pension increases were paid in respect of a GMP under the Pensions (Increase) Act 1971 and the equivalent amount was also paid under the legislation which provides for the index-linking of state pensions. Increases to the earnings related state pension are equivalent to the indexation of a GMP for the tax years 1978-79 to 1987-88 inclusive, and are equivalent to the indexation of a GMP to the extent of any increase in prices above 3% for the tax years 1988-89 to 1996-7 inclusive. Schemes are required to index GMPs to the extent of any increase in prices up to 3% for the tax years 1988-89 to 1996-7 inclusive, under section 109 of the Pension Schemes Act 1993.

To avoid the double indexation of the GMP element of an official pension, section 59(5) of the Social Security Pensions Act 1975 requires the deduction of the amount of the GMP from an official pension before it is increased. This direction makes an exception to this requirement in the circumstances specified.

Paragraphs 3 to 6 apply to pensioners who reach state pensionable age on or before 5 April 2016. (Paragraph 1 has the effect that in this direction “pensionable age” has the meaning given by section 122(1) of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992.) Although most pensioners who reach state pensionable age on or after 5 April 2016 will not receive additional pension, there are a few exceptions: widowed mother's allowance, widowed parent's allowance and widow's pension. Accordingly, paragraphs 3 to 6 also apply to pensioners who reach state pensionable age on or after 5 April 2016 who are entitled to additional pension.

Paragraph 3(a) specifies the case where the GMP element of an official pension is not being in effect indexed in full because the earnings related state pension to which the pensioner would be entitled if the occupational scheme were not contracted out is less than his or her GMP.

Paragraph 3(b) specifies the case where the pensioner does not receive a state retirement pension because he or she has not yet claimed it because, for example, he or she is in receipt of incapacity benefit, or he or she is not treated as having claimed it.

Paragraph 3(c) specifies the case where the pensioner does not receive a state pension because he or she has elected to be treated as not having retired.

Paragraph 3(d) specifies the case where additional pension is in payment but is not being increased because the pensioner is resident in a country with which the United Kingdom does not have reciprocal arrangements for uprating social security pensions.

Paragraph 3(e) specifies the case where the pensioner is disqualified from receiving additional pension because he or she is in prison.

Paragraph 3(f) specifies the case of a GMP paid to a surviving spouse or civil partner, unless he or she is entitled to a Category A or Category B state retirement pension by virtue of his or her late spouse or civil partner's National Insurance contributions.

Paragraphs 4, 5 and 6 prescribe how pensions increase is to be calculated when the conditions in sub-paragraphs 3(a), (b), (c), (d), (e) and (f) variously begin or cease to apply.

Paragraph 7 specifies pensioners who reach state pensionable age on or after 6 April 2016 who are not entitled to additional pension. The direction therefore also applies to pensioners who reach state pensionable age on or after 6 April 2016 but are already entitled to a GMP.

Because section 109 of the Pension Schemes Act 1993 requires the occupational scheme to index any GMP earned in the tax years 1988-89 to 1996-97 inclusive up to a limit of 3%, paragraphs 3 and 8 require the occupational scheme to deduct the amount of any increase under a section 109 order in the same tax year before calculating the increase due under an order under section 59.

The direction comes into force on 6 April 2021 and revokes the previous direction which came into force on 6 December 2018.
